

POETRY

Pulkita Anand

gg001650@gmail.com

Degree

What degree you want?
What degree you have?
Some degrees you left some degrees you spent
Hold your degree
Which degree you want to improve?
A degree you have
And a new degree you desire
With these piles of degree
You are rotting and rioting
Try to create a route
A degree you claim
And a degree you call
A miles to go before you take
And finish another degree
What you thought to be
And what you have become.

BIO- NOTE

Pulkita Anand, a student of literature, has published her work in different journals. She loves to read varied genres and write on varied aspects. She is interested in reading varied genres, from spiritual to scientific, to enrich her limited understanding of the things around her. She loves to absorb life to the fullest. At times, she loves to write too. Her creative works have been published in various journals: Setu Journal, Indian Periodical, The Criterion, Twist and Twain, Indian Ruminations, Langlit, Ashvamegha, Lapis Lazuli and among others.